THE 80/20 RULE

Through our partnership with Microsoft and based on our 25+ years of experience in leading the digital transformation in the region, we came to the conclusion that in any BI and AI project, 80% of the effort will be spent on preparing the underlying data lake house and securing a high data maturity score. This involves analysis and planning, preparing the data transformation process and aggregating data formula tiple sources. The remaining 20% is for leveraging this data to move from static reports to actionable insights in addition to providing clean data for AI to learn from and start enabling various Copilots agents.
